VCTC to Host Freight Corridors Study Workshops

CAMARILLO, Calif. – The Ventura County Transportation Commission (VCTC) invites the public to participate in three online workshops about a freight corridors study. The first workshop will be held Thursday, February 18.

A presentation in English will begin at 5 p.m. and a presentation in Spanish will begin at 6 p.m. The first workshop presentation will cover the goals of the study and the existing conditions of freight movement in Ventura County. After the presentation, attendees will have an opportunity to ask questions and provide comments.

A second workshop on March 18 will cover vulnerabilities, opportunities, and performance measures to identify and prioritize solutions. A comprehensive draft study will be presented April 15.

The workshops support efforts to prepare the Ventura County Freight Corridors Study, developed through a partnership between VCTC, the Port of Hueneme, Caltrans, and the Southern California Association of Governments. The study will identify and prioritize the most significant freight corridors for safer, more efficient, and sustainable freight connections to inform future highway planning and prioritize transportation investment decisions.
